

Dear Diary,

3rd September 1900

Last week something crazy happened! My brother and I decided to go on our biggest adventure yet and broke into a train to steal a giant jewel! I secretly felt really nervous before we left but I never told my brother Jesse. We managed to break into the train without getting caught and after that, we spotted what we had been looking for...the JEWEL! We then ran as fast as we could down the train until we reached the end of the carriage as we were now being chased. When we reached the end of the train, we had no where left to run so we had to jump! We launched ourselves off of the train and landed painfully on the ground. I felt a terrible pain in my leg but as I looked around, I saw the jewel sparkling in the sun. Suddenly, I felt happy and excited as we had managed to take the jewel! The adventure had paid off! I wonder what our next adventure will...
